FOR THE ASSOCIATE COMMISSIONER,
EXAMINATIONS

Mary C. Mulrean, Acting Director
Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The nonimmigrant visa petition was denied by the Director, Texas Service Center, and is now before the Associate Commissioner for Examinations on certification. The decision of the director will be affirmed.

The petitioner is a not-for-profit corporation that develops curriculum, training material and provides training services. It seeks to employ the beneficiary as a consultant for four years and two months. The director determined that the petitioner had not submitted a temporary labor certification from the Department of Labor or notice stating that such certification cannot be made. The director also determined that the petitioner had not established that the need for the services to be performed is temporary.

No additional evidence was submitted on certification.

Section 101(a)(15)(H)(ii) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. 1101(a)(15)(H)(ii), defines an H-2B temporary worker as:

An alien having a residence in a foreign country which he has no intention of abandoning, who is coming temporarily to the United States to perform other temporary service or labor if unemployed persons capable of performing such service or labor cannot be found in this country, but this clause shall not apply to graduates of medical schools coming to the United States to perform services as members of the medical profession....

Matter of Artee Corp., 18 I&N Dec. 366 (Comm. 1982), as codified in current regulations at 8 C.F.R. 214.2(h)(6)(ii), specified that the test for determining whether an alien is coming "temporarily" to the United States to "perform temporary services or labor" is whether the need of the petitioner for the duties to be performed is temporary. It is the nature of the need, not the nature of the duties, that is controlling. See 55 Fed. Reg. 2616 (1990).

As a general rule, the period of the petitioner's need must be a year or less, although there may be extraordinary circumstances where the temporary services or labor might last longer than one year. The petitioner's need for the services or labor must be a one-time occurrence, a seasonal need, a peakload need, or an intermittent need. 8 C.F.R. 214.2(h)(6)(ii)(B).

The petitioner has not submitted evidence to show that the need for the services to be performed by the beneficiary is temporary. The dates of intended employment are from October 1999 until December 2004. Therefore, it is clear that the petitioner has a permanent need for a worker in the position. The petitioner has not shown that the nature of its need for a consultant is temporary in nature.

The regulation at 8 C.F.R. 214.2(h)(6)(iv)(A) requires that a petition seeking H-2B classification be accompanied by a temporary labor certification from the Department of Labor or notice detailing the reasons why such certification cannot be made.

The petition was filed on July 29, 1999 without a temporary labor certification or notice detailing the reasons why such certification cannot be made. Absent such certification from the Department of Labor or notice detailing the reasons why such certification cannot be made, the petition cannot be approved.

The burden of proof in these proceedings rests solely with the petitioner. Section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. 1361. The petitioner has not sustained that burden.

ORDER: The decision of the director is affirmed. The visa petition is denied.
